

If You Are Representing Yourself at a Hearing or Trial:

1. Be prepared.
  - Keep your papers organized.
  - Know what evidence you need to prove your case.
  - Bring documents and witnesses that will help prove your claim or defend against the claim.
  - Bring at least three copies of each document you want to use as evidence: one for you, one for the other party, and one for the judge.
  - If a witness refuses to come to court to testify, you can have the court issue a subpoena before the day of the trial. Make sure to ask the clerk's office for a subpoena several days before your hearing.
  - Bring physical evidence. This includes a canceled check, contract, or invoice related to your case.
2. Be on time.
  - If you are not in court when your case is called and the other party is present, the judge might enter a judgment against you.
  - If neither party is on time, your case might be skipped
3. Know and follow court rules.
  - Judges cannot make exceptions for people without attorneys. You could lose your case if you do not follow the correct procedures. Know the rules!
4. Be courteous and respectful.
  - Make a good impression on the judge. The best way to act in court is to be courteous and respectful to everyone.
  - Wait for your turn to speak. Do not interrupt the judge or the other party.
  - Turn off your cell phone.
5. Dress appropriately.
  - You should wear an appropriate suit or sport coat, if you have one, or nice, clean, casual clothes and shoes.
  - Remove your hat or cap while you are in the courtroom or in the judge's office.
6. Speak loudly and clearly.
  - Judges and other litigants need to hear the facts correctly. The judge needs to hear you clearly so that he/she can make a correct ruling.

What to do if you cannot attend the court hearing:

You must inform the court and request a new hearing date.

- You must have a very good reason to reschedule any court hearing.
- To reschedule a hearing at the last minute, there must be an emergency.
  - You should immediately call the district court clerk's office where your hearing is scheduled.
  - Calmly explain your problem and ask to reschedule the hearing or trial. Court staff will write down the request and contact the judge. The judge will decide whether your reason for changing the hearing or trial date is serious enough to grant your request.
  - Give the clerk a phone number where you can be contacted that day.
- If something very important comes up two or more days before the hearing, i.e., a death in the family or an accident that puts you in the hospital, you must submit your request for a new hearing date or time in writing and file it with the district court clerk. Do this as soon as you know you need to reschedule the hearing.
- Deliver a copy of your request to the other party. Also, it's more likely a judge will agree to your request if you get the other party to sign a written agreement to change the hearing time or date and include it with your request for a new hearing date.
- The clerk will give your request to a judge. Because judges are busy, you probably won't get an answer right away.

NOTE: If you do not show up for the trial at the time it is scheduled and the other party does show up, the judge may enter a judgment in favor of the other party.

Attorney Limited Representation

In some districts, a self represented litigant can hire an attorney to do parts of their case or to advise them depending upon how much assistance they can afford. A lawyer can advise them of issues about which they will need to be aware. Hiring an attorney to provide limited assistance may help them represent themselves so that their rights are protected and they know what to do at different stages of their case.

Risks and Responsibilities of Proceeding Without Professional Legal

Warnings about using court forms.

- State laws and court rules can be very complicated. You could lose your case if you do not follow the laws, rules, or procedures.
- It is always best to talk to an attorney about your problem before filing a case or before responding to a case filed against you. You should also talk to an attorney if you do not know which form to use, what to write on a court form, or what to do with the form.
- Using court forms does not guarantee that you will get what you want.
- Carefully read the instructions for each court form before you fill it out.
- Be sure you fill out the forms completely and accurately.
- When you sign a court form, you are stating to the court that everything you wrote on the form is true and accurate.
- A judge can penalize you if you intentionally provide false information on a court form.
- It is illegal to sign another person's name on a court form or other paper filed in court.
- If you file a court form or other document at the district court clerk's office, you must always deliver a copy of that form or paper to the other person or persons involved in the case or the other person's attorney. This may be done by mail or in person.
- Always keep a copy of any papers you file at the district court clerk's office.

Judges and court staff cannot give you legal advice.

- Under state law and rules, judges and court staff cannot give legal advice. For example, judges and court staff cannot tell you whether you should file a case, what you should put in your written documents, or what you should say or ask in court. Why? Because:
  - Judges and court staff must not take sides in any case. It would be unfair for judges or court staff to give one person an advantage over another person in a court case.
  - If court staff gives you advice and it turns out to be wrong, you could lose your case.

Court staff cannot:

- Interpret the meaning of laws or court decisions.
- Perform legal research for a person involved in a court case.
- Predict the outcome of a case, a paper filed, or some other action in a case.
- Recommend:
  - Whether you should file a specific paper.
  - What words or phrases you should use in a paper.
  - Persons you should file a lawsuit against.
  - Types of claims or arguments you should include in papers or at trial.
  - How much money you should ask the court for.
  - Questions you should ask witnesses or other parties.
  - Ways to present evidence in papers or at trial.
  - How to defend against arguments made by the other party in papers or at trial.
  - When or whether you should ask to reschedule a hearing or trial.
  - When or whether you should agree to settle a case with the other party.
  - Whether a party should appeal a judge's decision.
- Fill out a form for a person involved in a case.

Court staff can provide this kind of help:

- Provide forms that the Kansas Supreme Court has approved for helping self represented court users.
- Answer questions about where to write in particular types of information on court forms but not what words to use when filling out the forms.
- Define terms commonly used in court.
- Provide phone numbers for lawyer referral services.

You cannot talk to the judge about your case unless all parties and attorneys are present.

- Under this rule, you cannot communicate with the judge about your case by e-mail or regular mail unless you send copies of your e-mail or regular mail to the other people involved in your case. You cannot talk with the judge about your case by telephone or in person unless all other parties are on the phone at the same time or in the same room together.
- This rule is important because it prevents a person or an attorney from giving information to a judge that the other side does not know about, which would be unfair to the other side.
- If you want to give the judge information you think is important for your case, or you want the judge to take some action related to a case, you must:
  - Put the request in writing;
  - File it in the clerk's office; and
  - Provide copies to the other parties and attorneys in your case.
